

Fixed Price of Distribution Box

Article Overview

Distribution boxes typically range from $15 to $1,500 depending on material, size, capacity, and features.

Price Overview

The cost of a distribution box varies widely based on material, size, and application. Small residential plastic units can cost as little as $15, while larger industrial-grade metal or weatherproof boxes may range from $300 to $1,500 or more . Concrete boxes, often used in specialized applications like septic systems, are the most expensive, typically $100 to $400+, especially if custom-made .

Factors Affecting Price

- Material: Plastic boxes are lightweight and inexpensive, metal boxes (steel or aluminum) offer better protection and durability, and concrete boxes provide maximum strength .
- Capacity: Larger boxes with more circuits or higher amperage ratings cost more due to increased material and complexity . A small 4-circuit box may cost around $15, whereas a 40-circuit panel can exceed $300 .
- Features: Advanced features like smart monitoring, modular design, weatherproofing, and integration with building management systems increase the price .
- Installation and Labor: Labor costs vary depending on complexity. Simple installations may cost $80-$100, while complex upgrades or relocations can exceed $4,000 including materials and permits .
- Customization: OEM branding, specialized mounting, or custom internal compone...
