

High-precision optical power meter calibration in Botswana

Article Overview

High-precision optical power meter calibration in Botswana can be performed by ISO/IEC 17025-accredited laboratories such as Montech Calibration Services and BOBS, ensuring traceable and reliable measurements.

Local Accredited Calibration Providers

Montech Calibration Services Botswana offers ISO/IEC 17025-accredited calibration services, emphasizing traceability, uncertainty management, and professional handling of precision instruments . They provide fast turnaround and maintain strict adherence to international standards, making them suitable for calibrating optical power meters used in telecommunications, research, or industrial applications. BOBS (Botswana Bureau of Standards) provides calibration services compliant with ISO/IEC 17025 and SADCAS TR09 requirements, ensuring measurement traceability to the International System of Units (SI), . While BOBS primarily focuses on electrical, torque, and dimensional calibration, they maintain internationally recognized standards and can advise on optical calibration or refer to specialized providers. Lamworld Technologies is a Botswana-based engineering company offering calibration, testing, and inspection services across various instruments . They emphasize routine recalibration programs to maintain measurement accuracy, which is critical for optical power meters in production or laboratory environments.
