

Nationwide supply of optical fiber cable protection pipes

Article Overview

A wide range of fiber optic cable protection pipes is available nationwide, including PE, PVC, and specialized split pipes for underground, overground, and subsea installations.

Types and Materials

Fiber optic cable protection pipes are manufactured in various materials to suit different installation environments:

- PE (Polyethylene) Pipes: Flexible, durable, and resistant to mechanical stress, ideal for challenging terrains and long-distance installations. PE pipes can be extruded in lengths up to 2.5 km for smaller diameters, facilitating high-speed fiber blowing and easy transport .
- PVC Pipes: Commonly used for domestic and building installations, offering fire-resistant and halogen-free options for safety .
- PP (Polypropylene) Pipes: Suitable for high-temperature and chemical-resistant applications .
- Ductile Iron Split Pipes: Designed for subsea, offshore wind, and shallow water applications, providing impact and abrasion protection for fiber optic cables .

Features and Benefits

- Mechanical Protection: Pipes are highly resistant to compression, tensile stress, a...
