Price of Optical Cable Reinforcement Device

Article Overview

FRP (Fibre Reinforced Plastic) rods for optical cable reinforcement typically range from $0.20 to $15 per meter depending on type, coating, and environmental specifications.

Overview of Optical Cable Reinforcement

Optical fiber cables often require reinforcement to maintain structural integrity, prevent buckling, and withstand environmental stresses. Common reinforcement materials include FRP rods, ARP (Aramid Reinforced Plastic) rods, and glass yarns. FRP rods are widely used as di-electric strength members, providing high stiffness and durability while remaining lightweight and non-conductive . These rods are available in diameters ranging from 0.4 mm to 6.5 mm and can be coated with materials like EAA (Ethylene Acrylic Acid) or HDPE for improved handling and grip .

Factors Affecting Price
• Material Type: FRP rods are generally less expensive than ARP rods, but both provide high tensile strength. Glass yarns used for water-blocking or additional reinforcement can increase overall cable cost .
• Diameter and Length: Larger diameter rods or longer lengths increase material costs. Standard industrial rods are produced in bulk, which can reduce per-meter pricing.
• Coating and Handling Features: Coatings like EAA or HDPE improve installation ease and durability, which can slightly increase the price ....
