

Price of equipment for producing outer casings of electrical distribution boxes

Article Overview

The cost of equipment for manufacturing electrical distribution box casings typically ranges from $50,000 to over $200,000 depending on automation level, production capacity, and material handling features.

Key Equipment Required

- Sheet Metal Forming Machines
 - Roll forming machines, bending devices, and hydraulic press brakes are used to shape steel or stainless steel sheets into box components.
 - Production lines can handle material thicknesses of 1.0-1.5 mm and widths of 200-450 mm, producing 2-3 enclosures per minute depending on specifications .
- Cutting and Punching Machines
 - CNC laser cutters, punching, and notching machines create precise holes and slots for mounting electrical components.
 - These machines ensure high accuracy and reduce manual labor .
- Welding Equipment
 - Spot welding and other welding machines join metal parts securely.
 - Power brake machines may also be used for bending and shaping during assembly .
- Surface Treatment and Coating Machines
 - Painting, powder coating, or galvanizing equipment provides corrosion resistance and aesthetic finishes
