

Unused fiber optic routers

Article Overview

Unused fiber optic routers can be sold, recycled, or purchased through online marketplaces and specialized resellers, offering both cost savings and environmental benefits.

Buying Unused or Lightly Used Fiber Optic Routers

You can acquire unused or nearly new fiber optic routers through several platforms:

- Online marketplaces like eBay and Kleinanzeigen.de offer a wide selection of fiber optic routers, including models such as FRITZ!Box 5530 Fiber, FRITZ!Box 7530 AX, and ZTE MC888 5G, often at discounted prices compared to new units .
- Specialized resellers like Buygreen provide refurbished routers with warranty, allowing buyers to save money while supporting environmentally friendly practices .

Selling or Recycling Unused Routers

If you have surplus or unused fiber optic routers, there are multiple options:

- Sell directly online: Platforms like Kleinanzeigen.de or eBay allow you to list your router for sale, often reaching buyers looking for affordable, functional devices .
- Sell to specialized recycling or buyback services: Companies such as buyRec purchase unbroken, functional routers and other networking equipment. They handle logistics, including shipping, and ensure devices are recycled or repurposed responsibly .
- Environmental benefits: Selling or recycling unused routers prevents electronic w...
