

What are the optical fiber and cable manufacturers in Mozambique

Article Overview

Key optical fiber and cable companies in Mozambique include TELEVISA, Midal Cables International Limitada, and BCS Group, alongside several importers serving the telecom sector.

Major Companies

TELEVISA is a leading telecommunications engineering company in Mozambique, active since 1990. It specializes in the planning, installation, and maintenance of optical fiber networks, cable television networks, and mobile networks. TELEVISA operates nationwide with its head office in Maputo and branches in cities such as Beira, Nampula, Tete, and Pemba, providing both infrastructure and technical services for fiber and cable networks. Midal Cables International Limitada is a local manufacturer of electrical and telecommunications cables, including aluminum rods, wires, and conductors for power transmission and distribution. Established in 2013 and operational since 2015, Midal Mozambique serves both domestic and international markets, offering high-voltage transmission line solutions and in-house testing facilities. BCS Group, an East African fiber optic specialist, has recently entered the Mozambican market. Based in Maputo, the company focuses on deploying new fiber optic cables and leasing bandwidth to mobile and internet operators, leveraging its access to submarine cables like TEAMS and EASSy.
